

SETH LOW IN THE CITY.

HE HAS NOTHING TO SAY FOR PUBLICA-TION.

MUCH BENEFITED APPARENTLY BY HIS SO-JOURN IN MAINE,
Seth Low returned yesterday to the city over which if the fates in the shape of a plurality vote, so decree, he will in a short while be called upon to preside as Mayor. Continuing the journey from Northeast Harbor, which he began at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, he left Boston yesterday morning at 10 o'clock by the limited express, and arrived at the Grand Central Station at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Save for a group of newspaper men, there were

Mr. Low, accompanied by his wife and a young woman who was understood to be a relative of Mr. Low, was escorted to the ordinary car.

lor-car. The party did not alight for some three or four minutes after all the other passengers had left the train. For a brief period it was thought that, despite the dispatches from Boston, his departure from that place had been delayed. Soon, however, Mr. Low was seen to step from the third car of the train, and, after assisting his wife to the platform, he turned to shake hands with W. H. Beebe, his private secretary. He walked the length of the platform

Mr. Beebe, conversing with animation. Before he could reach the carriage that was in readiness to convey him to his hotel he was surrounded by a number of newspaper men, and with several of those whom he knew he shook hands with extreme cordiality. But, solicitous to persuade as they might, Mr. Low resolutely refused to answer a single one of the many inquiries directed to him by the reporters.

NOTHING TO SAY FOR PUBLICATION.

"I have nothing to say just now," was his invariable answer, and not by a single syllable did he swerve from this determination. By way of variation he said once with a laugh: "I am glad to be back in New-York again, and am pleased to meet you all, but beyond that I have absolutely nothing to say."

Mr. Low then hastened to his carriage, in which his companions had already seated themselves, and was at once driven to the hotel.

stay during the next two or three weeks. The roadway in front of Mr. Low's house at Sixty-fourth-st. and Madison-ave. is just now torn up by the construction of the new underground electric system upon the Madison-ave. car line, and until this work is finished and the street relaid he will not reopen his house. He has selected a suite of rooms at the northeast corner of the third floor of the Plaza. Upon reaching the hotel he proceeded at once to his apartment. He received no callers.

It was easily perceptible that Mr. Low's visit to Northeast Harbor had greatly benefited him. His deeply tanned face and robust appearance generally betokened a constant pursuit of outdoor exercise and recreation. He wore yesterday a morning suit of dark blue serge, a light bow tie, a black derby hat, and shoes of patent leather. To those with whom he came in contact after leaving the train Mr. Low displayed the warmest affability. As he was about to enter the Plaza, a newspaper artist, who had obtained several snap shots of Mr. Low, came forward and approached him and asked permission to take a picture. Mr. Low gave his assent, and the negative of

The others might be poor fishermen, and the quantity of fish they had caught would be unsound, and, butting his chest, posed for a second before the camera.

Anticipating, probably, that Mr. Low would be in the city just after his journey from North Harbor, few people called upon him at the hotel last night, and of the small number who called only two succeeded in seeing him. Shortly after 10 o'clock, a messenger from the Executive Committee of the Citizen Union, arrived at the hotel and desired to see Mr. Low. The clerk immediately informed him that Mr. Low was not in, but that at that moment Mr. Beebe came through the corridor, and recognizing Mr. Reynolds, conducted him to Mr. Low's rooms. Mr. Beebe and Mr. Reynolds were in and was also escorted upstairs. The call of these two men lasted until

Mr. Low both refused to say more than that their visits had been made without appointment, and were purely informal. From another source it was learned last night that Mr. Low will not take any active campaign until the first of next month. In the mean time, until his resignation of the presidency of Columbia has been accepted, he will devote himself entirely to the interests of the university. Of course, however, from time to time confer with the Executive Committee of the Citizens Union.

♦

CITIZENS UNION MEN PLEASED.

Leaders of the Citizens Union were plainly delighted yesterday on account of the overwhelming vote in favor of Seth Low at the meeting of the Republican General Committee in Brooklyn on Tuesday night, but few of them were willing to make any comment for publication. Some of them said that they did not care to say anything in order not to indicate feeling at a time when the impression of Mr. Low by the Republic when the election appeared to be probable, James

The Executive Committee of the Citizens Union will hold a regular meeting this evening in its headquarters, at No. 39 East Twenty-third, but it probably will take no decided action looking toward the nomination of candidates for Controller and President of the Council, in view of the expectation that the Republican organization will endorse Mr.

STUDENTS CHEER DR. ANDREWS.
ANNUAL ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT OF BROWN UNIVERSITY.

the year the morning, and the exercises at the chapel were conducted by President Andrews. He did not make any allusion to his resignation nor to the affairs of the corporation, but every one knew that he had entered the building he was received with tremendous cheering by the students.

His annual address was on "Some Impressions of the Greater European Question." It was based on his personal investigation of the corporation and he referred to the religious question, and emphasized the fact that the success of China had been exaggerated, and that the difficulties of missionaries were underestimated.

He said that the present European situation, and that any hope for general peace was an illusion. It was only a temporary truce, and he said that the

His third topic was the territorial expansion and colonial policy of Great Britain.

FOUR NEW DRYDOCKS TO BE ASKED FOR

FROM THE NECESSITY OF SENDING WAR-SHIPS TO FOREIGN DOCKS.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The Navy Department has resolved to free itself from the necessity of sending will recommend to Congress that appropriations be made for at least four new drydocks. It will be suggested that these be located at Boston, League Island, Norfolk and Mare Island. It is hoped that Congress will authorize the construction of some

1991